Dear Mr. Wang,

We have returned safe and sound to Europe, still very much lost in beautiful memories and grateful for all you have allowed us to see and experience in your wonderful country.

It is very difficult to put our exact feelings into words, I think our language has become too technical for that. I am sure that in your country, with so many Chinese characters and symbols, it is easier to express finer meanings. I hope that in spite of rapid technical progress, your country will manage to preserve what so many industrialised nations have lost : its culture. Man does not live on bread alone, says the Bible, which is also widely spread in your country. The deeper meaning of these words becomes increasingly apparent in our so-called prosperous society.

I enclose - confidentially - copies of letters written to all those persons we had the privilege of meeting in Taipei and who contributed towards making our stay a worthwhile experience, in the hope that a mutually beneficial contact may perhaps continue to exist in the near and distant future.

We ourselves look forward to continued cooperation with you, also on a friendship basis, and to meeting you next September. Perhaps we shall have some time for personal contact. Please convey my thanks to all those who helped to fill our days in Taipei in such a valuable way.

I wish you continued good health, success and satisfaction. My personal regards to your wife and once again, many thanks indeed.

I remain,

yours sincerely,

Daniel Sommer
