Schlussbericht der 37. Berufsweltmeisterschaft 2003 St.Gallen/Schweiz
Final Report on the 37th WorldSkills Competition 2003 St.Gallen/Switzerland
Rapport final des 37^e Concours Mondial des Métiers Saint-Gall/Suisse

2003 WorldSkills Competition – a complete success

For the second time after 1997, St.Gallen became the venue of the WorldSkills Competition, which was staged for the 37th time this year. 673 young tradespersons from 36 countries demonstrated top-level skills, and some 180,000 visitors provided an appropriate setting for this large-scale event, which turned out to be a success in all respects. The Competition provided a platform for a worldwide exchange of experiences about the training of young tradespersons. It offered young people an opportunity to establish contacts across all national and cultural borders. I would like to thank all those whose generous support made the organisation of the 2003 WorldSkills Competition possible: the public sector, the Army, the trades associations, the employers' and employees' organisations, as well as the countless sponsors.

I would like to extend especial thanks to the Organising Committee, who succeeded in creating a unique atmosphere at this large-scale event. I am convinced that all the competitors, the official guests and functionaries, as well as the numerous spectators, will have very pleasant memories of the 2003 WorldSkills Competition in St.Gallen. I would like to wish WorldSkills (the International Vocational Training Organisation) a great deal of success in the demanding challenges it will face in the future.

My best wishes accompany the Finnish Organising Committee of the 2005 WorldSkills Competition, and I am already looking forward to lively competitions in Helsinki.

Swiss Foundation for International Vocational Competitions

The Chairman:

Hans Ulrich Stöckling,
Head of Government, Canton of St.Gallen

From IVTO to WorldSkills

After the 1997 competitions, the former organisation, "International Vocational Training Organisation IVTO" gave itself a new mission statement and new structures and now calls itself WorldSkills. The Organisation is based in the Netherlands.

From Olympics to World Championships

On the occasion of earlier competitions, the national Olympic Committees concerned already opposed the use of the protected title, Olympics. It was for this reason that WorldSkills decided to give the event a new name. The designations that are now applicable are as follows:

WorldSkills Competition
Concours Mondial des métiers
Berufsweltmeisterschaft

About WorldSkills

Mission

To promote, through the cooperative actions of Members, a worldwide awareness of the essential contribution that skills and high standards of competence make to the achievement of economic success and individual fulfilment.

Objectives

1. Market WorldSkills by drawing on the global efforts of Member organisations.
2. Position the WorldSkills Competition as the premier world event for skills recognition and advancement.
3. Develop a new modern identity and a flexible structure to support the global activities of WorldSkills.
4. Develop strategic partnerships with selected corporate, government and non-government organisations to further the aims of WorldSkills.
5. Disseminate information and share knowledge about skill standards and WorldSkills performance benchmarks, especially via the World Wide Web.
6. Facilitate networking among WorldSkills experts to develop new opportunities for skills development and innovation.
7. Encourage the transfer of skills, knowledge and cultural exchange between participants in WorldSkills and other young people across the world.

To achieve these objectives WorldSkills will:

- challenge young people, their teachers, trainers and employers to achieve world class standards of competence in commerce, services and industry, and to promote the status of vocational training;
- conduct WorldSkills Competitions in alternate years;
- promote the exchange of ideas and experience in vocational training through seminars, meetings and competitions;
- disseminate information on world class standards of competence;
- seek to motivate young people to pursue further education and training relevant to their careers;
- facilitate communication and contacts between vocational training organisations around the world;
- encourage the exchange of young professionals among the Members.

Why St.Gallen again?

After the WorldSkills Competition had taken place in Montreal in 1999 and in Seoul in 2001, the 2003 WorldSkills Competition was scheduled to take place in the United Arab Emirates. WorldSkills, the international organiser of the event, had to accept Dubai's withdrawal at short notice for a variety of reasons. The organisation of a replacement event with over 600 competitors from about 35 nations in only two years is impossible, however – unless the necessary know-how is already in place.

At the initiative of Hans Ulrich Stöckling, Education Minister of the Canton of St.Gallen, the former Organising Committee of the 1997 Youth Skill Olympics were asked to examine whether the competition could be staged in Switzerland once more in 2003. Their primary task was to sound out funding possibilities and the provision of the necessary infrastructure.

On the occasion of the Extraordinary General Assembly of WorldSkills in Seoul in March 2001, the Board of the Swiss Foundation for International Vocational Competitions offered Switzerland's good services. The delegates then voted unanimously to award the 2003 Competition to Switzerland and St.Gallen.

The organisation

With only a few exceptions, all the OC Members of the 1997 Youth Skills Olympics were again prepared to join in. First of all, however, a support association had to be set up, which was chaired by the St.Gallen Education Minister, Hans Ulrich Stöckling. As chairman of the Swiss Foundation for International Vocational Competitions, he was also able to guarantee quick communication channels between the two organisations. At the same time, a Patronage Committee was established, which was chaired by the President of the Confederation, Pascal Couchepin, and Federal Councillor Ruth Metzler.

The Organising Committee consisted of an Executive Committee with

- Dr Armin Mühlematter, Chairman; the Vice-Chairmen
- Kurt Kern, Administration;
- Edwin Naef, Technical Matters;
- Dr Dieter Niedermann, Finances/Sponsorship; and the two Members
- Ruedi Giezendanner, Contact with the Authorities;
- Hildegard Jutz, Media

The Executive Committee was supported by seven Divisional Heads:

- Esther Aepli-Alder, Accommodation/Catering;
- Walter Eggenberger, Entertainment;
- Jakob Egli, Personnel;
- René Geissmann, Construction;
- Fritz Hilty, Transport;
- Erich Riederer, Planning;
- Xaver Würth, Marketing

Each Divisional Head had his or her own staff so that finally, the Organising Committee was made up of 47 members. The Secretary's Office was run by the Vice-Chairman Administration. From mid-2002, the Executive Committee met every two weeks, the Executive Committee and the Divisional Heads met once a month. The OC as a whole was convened and informed every 4–5 months.

Objectives of the Organising Committee

With the slogan small – smart – simple, the Organising Committee wanted to run a manageable, well-organised competition in a simple environment. The OC was aware of the fact that it would come up against limits in terms of infrastructure and particularly in terms of accommodation capacity. With the traditional Eastern Swiss hospitality, however, these bottlenecks were mastered.

Sponsorship

The new OC was able to profit from the experiences gained in connection with the 1997 Youth Skills Olympics: the sponsors contacted knew in advance what kind of event this was and were ready to consider participation. However, the economic situation was not particularly propitious. The event could never have taken place in Switzerland if the Confederation, the Canton of St.Gallen and the City of St.Gallen, as well as the cantons of Eastern Switzerland, had not laid the financial foundations.

The financial sponsorship objective was almost completely attained. In the field of machine and material sponsorship, the OC conducted negotiations with the firms which made available machinery for several trades. Thanks to the commitment of the trades associations, about 350 machine and material sponsors were found in spite of all the difficulties.

Planning

Planning requires two things: the description of the trades and the concomitant inventory lists, and the exact number of participants in the individual trades. Unfortunately, we had neither one nor the other for a long time!

When despite several reminders, the trade descriptions arrived in St.Gallen six months late, the OC discovered that they were incomplete in parts and therefore useless. Only very few descriptions contained clear indications as to what infrastructure was to be organised by the OC and what competitors had to bring along themselves. In cooperation with the judges and delegates, as well as the trades associations, the OC drew up a trilingual infrastructure list for each workshop and sent these lists to the delegates. On the basis of these lists, machines and materials were made available, and the necessary installations were planned.

In November 2002, the number of competitors enrolled was 799 (in comparison with 533 participants in 1997), which prompted us to extend existing plans and look for more space. The fact that finally, "only" 673 people took part in the competition prompted the OC to call on WorldSkills to improve the enrolment procedure.

The following space had to be made available:

Overall surface:	68,500 m ²
Occupied surface, halls:	40,795 m ²
Occupied surface, marquees:	6,225 m ²
Net surface, workshops:	31,565 m ²
Transport surface: approx. 30% of overall surface

Planning work:

Room arrangement/workshops	1,570 h
Sanitation/energy planning	930 h
Power supply planning	640 h

Final check by the Delegates

From 11 to 20 November 2002, 87 Technical and Official Delegates from all over the world met in St.Gallen for their Extraordinary General Assembly. Apart from the regular agenda and the Technical Committee's and the Strategy Committee's meetings, the competition venues were inspected and the state of preparations examined. The OC was available for any questions.

Administration

Marketing

Objectives of the marketing concept (excerpt):

- concise, memorable marketing appearance to increase popular awareness of the WorldSkills Competition;
- standardised visual design to create a profile for the brand WorldSkills Competition;
- well-founded comprehensive information for the purpose of attracting sponsors, visitors, as well as international economic experts and media representatives.

The following information vehicles were created:

Printed matter:

- brochure, 9 x 18 cm, by way of preliminary information in English, German and French;
- sponsorship brochure, A4, in German and French;
- visitor leaflet, A4, German/English and French/Italian;
- leaflet for schools, A4, with order/booking forms in German, French, English and Italian;
- event guide/programme, A5, German/English/French;
- final report, with CD, German/English/French;
- posters, 50 x 70 cm, German/English/French;
- posters, 70 x 100 cm, German/English/French;
- posters, F4, 90.5 x 128 cm, German, English, French and Italian;
- posters, F12, 285 x 128 cm, German, French and Italian.

Advertisements

- were placed in the major Swiss daily newspapers, partially in cooperation with the Federal Office for Professional Education and Technology.

Direct mail campaigns

Direct mail was sent to

- the editors of the official school journals and teachers' publication organs in Switzerland, Austria, Germany and the Principality of Liechtenstein;
- Swiss vocational colleges;
- secondary school centres in Eastern Switzerland and neighbouring border regions;
- small business associations, trades associations, judges and shopmasters.

Website

- Design of a comprehensive website with information about the competition and links to the major sponsors.

Further advertising/decoration elements

- tablemats with a competition for restaurants in the region;
- stickers for cars;
- flags and banners;
- printed-on tarpaulin to cover Hall 14;
- three-dimensional groups of figures, 5 m tall ("yellow workers") to put up in the city;
- inflatable figure, 12 m tall;
- small figures to stick on the workshop barriers;
- chocolate bars, 100 g, with WorldSkills Competition design.

Advertising in the city

The OC set particular store by the creation of a certain atmosphere in our old town. The corporate design created by our Graphic Design Studio, was excellently suited to this task. Numerous symbolic figures and about 300 flags attracted people's attention in the run-up to the event.

Accommodation

In August 2001, 80 establishments in and around St.Gallen were asked how many beds they would be able to make available. In total, the OC was able to allocate 2,972 beds.

All in all, beds were allocated for

- 736 competitors/team leaders, of which 178 were in Neuchlen Barracks;
- 1,954 delegates/judges/observers/escorts;
- 50 journalists.

The event generated a total of 23,400 overnight stays in Eastern Switzerland.

Construction stage

Apart from the existing trade fair area, four big marquees were put up on surrounding sites; moreover, the City of St.Gallen made a sports hall available to us. Unfortunately, this still did not provide enough space so the MTC trade had to be moved to a training centre. For the presentation of the countries and sponsors, 4 marquees (10x10 m) and 72 small tents (5x5 m) were erected in the "International Village". Construction and installation work was started on 26 May 2003. Thanks to the support provided by the shopmasters, by staff of the Municipal Civil Engineering Department and of Civil Protection, the goal was achieved of being able to hand the facilities over to the Technical Delegates on their arrival on 13 June 2003 in a practically operational state.

Energy requirements

Electricity	226,100 kWh
Water	1,260 m³
Gas	900 kg

Time spent on construction/removal

Electricity	approx. 1,700 hours
Sanitation	approx. 1,820 hours
Installation	approx. 13,150 hours

For the approximately 4,500 m of workshop barriers made of scaffolding, 22,200 individual elements with an overall weight of 190 tons were put up and covered with more than 4,000 m of white synthetic foil. 17,500 m² of carpet were laid, and the halls were decorated with 300 green plants. 3,350 m compressed-air pipes, 1,400 m water supply pipes 700 m waste water pipes and 450 m gas pipes had to be laid. 2,700 m of partitions separated individual workstations and berths.

Infrastructure made available for the work shops

3,470 Chairs
464 Office chairs, stools
1,304 Tables
1,700 Lockers
900 Coat-hangers
540 Workbenches
530 Vices
350 Computers with monitors
107 Printer, plotters

Competition tasks

About one third of the tasks were first made known to competitors some four months before the competition. In order to ensure that the competition would still be fair, these tasks were modified by about 30% by the judges in St.Gallen. This was immensely labour-intensive since plans had to be redrawn, tasks translated and materials made available within three days.

Personal tools

Despite the fact that machines, tools and materials were made available, competitors brought their own personal working implements to St.Gallen. All in all, 1,001 tool crates with an overall weight of 165 tons arrived in St.Gallen. After customs clearance through the haulage company Kühne & Nagel AG, the crates had to be taken to the workshops – no easy task on the sprawling Olma site. Needless to say, the crates had to be shipped back after the competition (though not as neatly packed as on arrival...!)

Instructions in the workshops

Experts provided competitors with detailed instructions about the machines that had come straight from the works.

Safety

All the workstations were checked for safety by the Swiss Accident Insurance Institution and by the Cantonal Factory Inspectors. The workshops were equipped with first aid kits and 250 fire extinguishers.

Two men each from the Municipal Police and the Fire Brigade were constantly present; in addition, 10 men from the Army's Transport Police were in operation. Medical care was guaranteed by several first aid posts on site, as well as by the adjacent hospital. During the competition, 97 people received outpatient treatment for slight injuries or indisposition.

Visitors

The number of visitors – nearly 180,000 – was immense. This was not least the result of the following measures:

- In the run-up to the competition, about 100,000 free tickets bearing their logos were sent to the sponsors for distribution.
- On the basis of advertisements, 1,218 school classes with up to 23,000 pupils, as well as 62 groups enrolled for a visit.

Media

The OC took up the regular distribution of media releases as early as April 2002. The printing rate was good; the closer the beginning of the WorldSkills Competition, the more lively the media's interest. For the WorldSkills Competition itself, 350 media representatives from 20 countries accredited themselves, among them teams from 34 television and video institutions and 15 radio stations. In the media centre on the competition site, they were provided with a technical infrastructure that covered their requirements in an optimal fashion; moreover, OC members constantly supported them with information and practical help.

In Switzerland newspapers, magazines and association media published reports that were often quite detailed and – after the Swiss team had become world champions – full of enthusiasm. The evaluation by the media service resulted in 10 kilograms of paper! The Swiss television stations from all three linguistic regions also regularly covered the competitions, as well as the opening and closing ceremonies – sometimes even at prime time: in the news programmes Tagesschau, Temps present and Telegiornale. The German-language radio station DRS and its Italian-language sister station in the Ticino provided excellent coverage of the event, and the local radio stations – 14 in all – broadcast 52 different programmes. The most important foreign media corporations were contacted either directly or through diplomatic representations.

Attendance

40 hostesses made available by the St.Gallen Banking Association were in operation for the purposes of general information and the well-being of our guests. Another 30 people were deployed for the distribution of snacks to the workshops, while 40 people worked at the cash desks and checked meals. Yet another 10 people helped with the administrative work.

Catering

The official trade fair catering firm, Sântis Gastronomie AG, knew extremely well how to fulfil our guests' wishes. Apart from the 16,458 meals served at the buffets, about 50 people were catered for at the buffet for Muslims every day.

Transport

To cope with the extensive transport movement, we had the service of 110 officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of a transport company. Every day, 1,900 people were conveyed from and to 78 different hotels without any accidents.

Vehicles	33 coaches 47 minibuses
Distance covered	165,451km
Fuel consumption	24,000 l

Entertainment

Welcoming receptions

On Thursday, 12 June, and Sunday, 15 June 2003, the technical delegates and judges, and the competitors, official delegates and observers, respectively, were welcomed with an attractive folklore programme in the Abbey Square. The catering was done by Die Gastwirte GmbH. Unfortunately, the colourful gathering of participants from 36 nations in "Switzerland's most beautiful square" was hampered by a violent thunderstorm on the Thursday.

Opening ceremony

The Kreuzbleiche-Halle, which was filled to capacity, provided an appropriate backdrop for the tremendous opening ceremony of the 37th WorldSkills Competition. After the entry of the 36 nations, which the Pepe Lienhard Orchestra accompanied with an arrangement that had been specially written for the purpose, addresses were given by Federal Councillor Joseph Deiss, Tjerk Dusseldorp, President of WorldSkills, and Education Minister Hans Ulrich Stöckling. The swearing of the oath, as well as entertainment elements such as cowbell ringers, the interlude by the Municipal Theatre's Dance School, and songs sung by a school choir constituted further parts of the programme. The highlight was a performance of the twenty-minute abbreviated version of the musical Space Dream. Decatron Media AG recorded the opening ceremony (and the closing ceremony) and provided the media with visuals and sound free of charge. This opportunity was made use of by 10 teams.

Happy hour

To promote conviviality and an international exchange of experiences, the OC invited participants to free drinks on the four competition days from 5 to 7 p.m. The hot weather favoured this project, which proved to be very popular.

Excursions

The short daily excursions for escorts were hardly used. By contrast, the two outings of Monday (competitors) and Tuesday (judges) after the competition were a complete success. After a short visit to Lake Constance, the competitors boarded 18 coaches to travel to the Principality of Liechtenstein for lunch, from where they proceeded up to Schwägalp, where they had an opportunity to experience a variety of local customs. The highlight was the ascent to the top of Säntis (2,502 metres above sea level) for dinner and to experience the sunset.

Closing ceremony

The most important event for both competitors and delegates is the closing ceremony with the award of the medals. The musical component was provided by the Big Band of the Cantonal School of Wattwil and the Gossau Drummers' Association, who performed their rhythms on a weird and wonderful variety of tools. The highlight was the award of the Generali Trophy (cowbell) for the best national competitors. There was a feeling of wistfulness when the WorldSkills flag was handed over to the Finnish delegation, who will organise the 2005 Competition.

Farewell party

The tension was off. After the closing ceremony, some 2,200 people gathered in the Olma halls for the great party, which lasted into the early morning hours...

Cordial thanks

My first thanks go to the delegates of WorldSkills who at the General Assembly of 7 March 2001 in Seoul expressed their confidence in us and asked us to organise the 37th WorldSkills Competition of 2003. Thanks to the experience gained in the organisation of the 1997 Youth Skill Olympics and thanks to the goodwill demonstrated by all those concerned, we succeeded in organising the 2003 WorldSkills Competition to the highest standards. Crucial contributions to this were made by the public sector (Confederation, the Canton of St.Gallen and the City of St.Gallen), the Army, the employers' and employees' associations, the professional organisations involved, and the large number of sponsors and patrons. They provided us with generous support. Raising the necessary funds, making available state-of-the-art machinery straight from the factory, as well as the necessary materials, is not a matter of course in today's economic situation. The competent shop masters, judges and delegates also contributed to the successful event. I would like to extend my cordial thanks to them and to all the countless people. Everyone made every effort, with great enthusiasm, to guarantee that the 2003 WorldSkills Competition went off without a hitch.

The competitors displayed a very high level of vocational skills. They, too, deserve particular thanks, as do the 180,000 visitors who observed the young professionals' work with great interest. Countless media representatives covered the 37th WorldSkills Competitions worldwide – many thanks for their objective reports. Cooperation with the General Secretary of WorldSkills, Daniel Sommer, who always managed to keep a general view of things, and his ever helpful secretary, Erika Moser, was characterised by an atmosphere of friendship.

I would like to thank all the members of the Organising Committee for the splendid work they did – their commitment was unique. I also appreciated the support provided by the Swiss Foundation for International Vocational Competitions and the Support Association, both of them chaired by Hans Ulrich Stöckling. The 2003 WorldSkills Competition is now a thing of the past – the St.Gallen OC would like to wish their Finnish friends a great deal of success in the preparation and organisation of the 38th WorldSkills Competition in Helsinki in 2005.
