For Jim,

Only 12 months ago this Trust and UK SKILLS decided to co-habit. We hoped that this would save money, promote synergies and help us to deliver our joint-venture; The National Skills Festival. Despite (possibly because of) the best efforts of the NMEC we have done one another a great deal of good. Or so I like to believe.

We now need to decide where we might go from here, and to help clear our minds I have agreed with John Cassels and Bill Castell (our respective Chairman) that it would be helpful if the Trust were to organise a creative dinner one evening in December. The rules would be:

- In London, beginning at 18:30. Finish by 21:00
- At a date to fit you (please complete the attached and return)
- We focus on the big issues (how we can contribute to upskilling the unskilled etc) before we get into the mechanics (structure, funding etc)

I hope we can find a date suitable to us all.
