History of WorldSkills Competition

After the Second War World, the Spanish Government held the 1st International Vocational Training Competition at Madrid, in 1950, to motivate the young people to pursue the vocational career. Since then the number of participating countries have increased leading the establishment of the International Vocational Training Organization in 1954. The WorldSkills Competition has been every odd year since then.

WorldSkills Official Emblem

To celebrate 50 years of history to develop the organization towards the new millenium, the WorldSkills Organization held the Identity Design Competition, in which a Korean university student (Teaho Yang, Mokwon University) was honored the winner. Using the had as the basic concept for creating skills, this design shows the hand representing the world's young people reaching out for new skills expressed by the 5 strong banners of yellow, green, blue, red and black.

<Official emblem and poster of the 36th WorldSkills Competition>

A traditional emblem of Korea, Tae-Guk, and a human hand which is easily associated with skills and techniques configures this official emblem. The basic unit of Tae-Guk is expressed in a vivid touch to notify the traditional culture and skills of Korea. Around the symbol of Tae-Guk, five colors representing skilled persons from five oceans are gathering. Each color used in the symbol has a meaning: yellow stands for harmony, green for youth, blue for advance, red for ambition, orange for friendship.

Ginny

<Official mascot of the 36th WorldSkills Competition>

Ginny means someone who is adroit and professional in his field in Korean, which truly represents the role model of the 21st century which can also be implied to the skilled technicians around the world. 2001 SEOUL 36TH WORLD SKILLS COMPETITION

A traditional emblem of Korea, Tae-Guk, and a human hand which is easily associated with skills and techniques configures this official emblem. The basic unit of Tae-Guk is expressed in a vivid touch to notify the traditional culture and the skills of Korea.

Around the symbol of Korea, Tae-Guk in the center, five colors representing skilled persons from five oceans are gathering. Each color used in the symbol has a meaning; yellow stands for harmony, green for youth, blue for advance, red for ambition, orange for friendship.

History of I.V.T.O.

In 1947, the National Skills (Vocational Training) Competition was inaugurated by the Spanish "Vocational Youth Group" in Madrid, the capital city of Spain. The National Skills Competition was organized in 1950 for the first time. As competitions followed, member countries grew in numbers. In 1954 the International Organizing Committee was established and decided to organize the competition in turns as possible. The records from the International Skills Competition became the barometer of each country's manufacturing skills and trade products' quality.
